

To Our Courageous Friends from Ferguson,

Though we don't know each other, we are kindred spirits. While we live far apart, the salt of our tears pours from the same river.

The dignity of standing up is shared across generations and miles.

Ferguson is everywhere and is now a rallying cry taken up around the country. Your “for JUSTICE” echoed in New York when Eric Garner's killers went free. It echoed here in Cleveland when Tanisha Anderson and Tamir Rice were murdered. We are grateful and inspired that you have traveled this long a way to join our struggles together.

In hopes the solidarity we share this weekend helps to escalate the struggle and keep the momentum going.

-From your friends in Puncture the Silence
Cleveland.
